Bio: Regan Black is the award-winning author of action-packed paranormal romance and urban fantasy novels featuring kick-butt, alpha female heroines. In addition to the Shadows of Justice series, several short stories, and blogs, she's also authored the non-fiction Adopt A Greyhound Guide and Goal Setting for Writers, a book based on her popular online workshop. Raised in the Midwest and California, she now lives with her family, three retired greyhounds, two cats and four finches in the South Carolina Lowcountry where the abundance of history and legend fuels her imagination. Welcome, Regan!

Suggested topics for discussion:

- From Politics to Kryptonite: World building tips for writers and suggestions for making the world for your characters come alive for your readers.
- The Most Valuable Lesson From Vampire Authors: Reviewing the great potential in the current publishing climate. Publishing is in upheaval, that's not news, but attitude makes the difference. With so many changes authors are going directly to the reader and that's a boon for everyone.
- The Secret Life of a 40mph Couch Potato: Greyhound rescue and adoption. The fun and lively side of the Regan Black household in regards to our experience with foster greyhounds, adopted greyhounds, and advice on making your own fast friend.
- Juggling Isn't Just for Clowns: Balancing life, writing, and promotion. Life is always a balancing act. Discussion points involve making time to write, planning promotional endeavors, and enjoying life in the process.
- A Rose By Any Other Name: Why labels do and don't matter. Labels such as 'paranormal romance author', 'thriller', or 'urban fantasy' help readers find books, but don't have to be restrictive to an author's productivity.
- Who Changed My Plan (Or Plot Point): Revisions are important in writing and in life. Based on Regan's book, Goal Setting for Writers, discussion points involve motivation, goal setting and revising both career goals and manuscripts.
