

March 2016 Newsletter

We've had lovely, blustery days lately and Bandit just stands in the yard and lets the breeze blow over his nose. It's a good lesson, to stop and just soak up the beauty of these glorious days.

The big news at our house this month is that it's the first time since our daughter went off to college that neither of the kids will be home for spring break. It's a double edged sword since we love seeing them, but we're excited because they will both be on exploratory trips with their respective colleges.

Heavy Artillery Husband arrives in stores on March 22 and the ebook will be released on April 1!! Debra Webb and I had such a great time with these two adventuresome couples.

You can pick up the book or pre-order it at Amazon or your favorite bookseller.

Behind the Scenes

One of my favorite parts of working on Gunning For The Groom and Heavy Artillery Husband involved the fond memories of my first trip to the Seattle area with my husband when we were newlyweds. Having grown up out there, he was a wonderful tour guide during our treks from Pike Place Market to Tillicum Village to the Space Needle and so many lovely points in between.

This month's recipe is my favorite way to prepare salmon and I wanted to include it for you. Seriously easy and flavorful, this dish was on my mind when Deb and I developed the grilled salmon scene in Gunning for the Groom.

Pesto Salmon

Basically, all you need is a six ounce portion of salmon per serving. Spread a generous tablespoon of pesto on each portion and sprinkle with shaved Parmesan or a shredded Italian cheese blend. Then grill (or bake at 375 degrees) until the salmon is cooked through (flakes easily, light pink, and firm). Serve with your favorite salad greens and side dish.

Be sure to visit the Night Owl Reviews Spring Fling scavenger hunt! I really enjoy being a sponsor on these events with so many terrific authors. This is a wonderful way to discover more great reads and win prizes too.

Congratulations to Lisa, winner of this month's newsletter gift card drawing!!

Live the Adventure,

Regan

P.S. When you see Heavy Artillery Husband in stores, please snap a picture and send it to black.regan@gmail.com so I can give you a shout out on Twitter, Facebook, and Pinterest!